School budget deliberations off to 'good' start

By Mike Lydick
Turley Publications
Correspondent

The two biggest drivers of a projected 5-percent increase in the school budget for fiscal year 2015 are new technology requirements and rising enrollment at the elementary level.

Superintendent William Sapelli's preliminary budget request totals $40,103,919 – an increase of just more than $2 million from the current $38,080,847 budget. A "level-service" budget, it maintains the 2013-14 school-year services for the 2014-15 school year.

The school committee's budget/finance subcommittee and a city council

"The budget I've proposed will assist us in offering quality education to all students because it keeps our numbers where they belong so students can learn."

Superintendent William Sapelli

subcommittee got their first look at the budget when Sapelli presented it during a February budget workshop. The superintendent is requesting five new teaching positions – one each at three of the four elementary schools, an additional Reading Recovery program teacher at the Granger Elementary School, and an additional special education teacher.

Class sizes increasing

Sapelli said the additional teachers, as well as a paraprofessional for the special education teacher, are necessary because more children have enrolled in the district than had been projected. He said adding teachers will maintain class sizes at an "appropriate" level" – 20

Capital improvement funds requested for new preschool center

By Mike Lydick
Turley Publications
Correspondent

In addition to a proposed budget of more than $40 million for FY'15, Superintendent of Schools William Sapelli is also requesting more than $5 million for three capital improvement projects that would be funded outside of the school budget.

A new 30,000-square-foot Early Childhood Center (ECC) to replace the current facility on Perry Lane is projected to cost $5.1 million. The estimated cost for new intercom systems at two elementary schools – one at Robinson Park and one at Phelps – is nearly $48,000.

If the projects are approved by the city council, bonds would finance a new ECC and replacement intercom systems. Projects that cost at least $20,000 and have a life expectancy of 10 years are eligible for capital improvement financing. Sapelli said a new ECC is a "top priority" for the district.

"The current facility is too small. Overcrowding is now such a problem that we have to use two classrooms at the Clark school," he said.

Demand for preschool increasing

Marijuana siting issue moves ahead slowly

By Christopher Faille
Turley Publications
Correspondent

AGAWAM – No decision came of the Planning Board's most recent discussion of medical marijuana at its Feb. 20 meeting, but board members and staff do seem to have achieved consensus on the key issues involved.

In November 2012, state voters approved a law regulating the cultivation, possession and sale of marijuana for medicinal purposes. Last summer, the Planning Board put the whole issue of a possible dispensary in Agawam on hold, pending the ongoing work of the Pioneer Valley Planning Commission (PVPC), which was preparing a model ordinance on the subject.

Deborah S. Dachos, director of planning and community development, said the PVPC has prepared its model, and she is satisfied that it offers valuable guidance. There will have to be both a standard or "boilerplate" part and a "discretionary" part of an eventual Agawam ordinance, Dachos said. The boilerplate of the PVPC model is already "used across the region," she added.

But, "the discretionary part is where they [marijuana dispensaries] would go, and whether they would be allowed by right or by special permit," Dachos said. In Chicopee, for example, the PVPC ordinance has been adopted and the discretionary questions have been resolved; dispensaries will be allowed only in industrial zones, and will be allowed there only by special permit.

Council to reconsider union contracts

By Gregory A. Scibelli
Turley Publications
Correspondent

AGAWAM – A snowstorm postponed the Agawam City Council's Feb. 18 meeting, delaying the major issue of whether or not contracts for seven different unions will be reconsidered.

The contracts will be up for discussion at the council's next regularly-scheduled meeting on March 3 at 7 p.m. Mayor Richard Cohen is supporting a request from seven different unions: the Agawam Police Supervisors Association, Agawam Clerical Employee's Association, Agawam Department of Public Works Employee's Association, Agawam Police Patrolman's Association, Agawam Building Maintenance Association, Agawam Administrative Unions, and the AFL-CIO Local 1973 Firefighters' Association, to have their new contracts re-considered.

The city council effectively turned down funding the new contracts when they were deadlocked in a 5-5 vote for the contracts and the subsequent fund transfers to the appropriate salary accounts. Cohen has continued to express disappointment with the decision.

More than 100 million people read a printed newspaper each day – that's more than watch the Super Bowl. American Idol or TV late news. Plus, many more read local papers online. Newspapers, in all forms, are still the primary source for news in the U.S.

WHERE IS IT?

Each week Agawam Advertiser News will feature a photo of a local building, item, sign, place or landmark and ask readers to pick their brains to figure out where it is or even what it is. Check here each week to test your knowledge of the area where we live and work. The photo will be from either Agawam or Feeding Hills, but we'll always give you a hint or two.

The answer to this week's "Where is it?" will run in next week's edition along with the name of the first person to submit a correct answer and a new trivia photo for you to consider.

Yes he can: Eagle Scout hopeful continues successful food drive

Eagle Scout hopeful Matthew Christian, 17, takes a food donation last Saturday morning at First Baptist Church from fellow Boy Scout Jason Breton, 11. Christian is leading his fellow scouts in a food drive to earn the Eagle rank.

By Gregory A. Scibelli
Turley Publications Correspondent

AGAWAM – After more than 10 years of scouting, Matthew Christian, 17, is getting set to become his family’s first Eagle Scout. Christian is working on completing the finishing touches of a scout-led month-long food drive to help fill the shelves of the Parish Cupboard, a West Springfield food pantry.

Christian and his scout pack, Troop 185 in Agawam, are continuing to collect food donations through the end of this weekend. Anyone wishing to donate food toward the drive can contact Christian and he will come pick up the donations.

Last Saturday morning, he held one of the culminating events of his food drive when he and a few other scouts gathered outside First Baptist Church to take donations in person. As a part of his Eagle Scout project, Christian is required to lead his scouts in executing a community-service project.

“I had them do a lot of work passing out flyers throughout town and spreading the word about the food drive,” said Christian. “Here today, they are helping me load food into the van and bring in donations.”

Christian chose to do the food drive for his Eagle Scout project because he wanted to help the Parish Cupboard at a time when they really need the donations.

“Right now, their shelves are getting near empty,” he said. “They are going through a really tough time with donations. It is very slow this time of year. I really want to help them fill the shelves.”

He has collected more than 100 food items to send to the pantry. He says 25 percent of the Parish Cupboard’s clients are from Agawam.

Although Christian will submit his application for Eagle Scout on March 3, that does not mean he will stop collecting donations, and he encourages residents to call him at (413) 789-0396 to coordinate a convenient time for pick up.

Christian says his application will be heard by the Eagle Scout Board on March 11 in Springfield, and he is hopeful he will attain the Eagle rank at that meeting.

“It would mean a lot to me to become an Eagle Scout,” said Christian. “It is a great accomplishment. It is also something that looks very good on a college application and a job resume.”

Christian said he was encouraged to take up an extracurricular activity by his parents and chose scouting when he was seven years old. He has stuck with it ever since and has helped to grow Troop 185.

“I have had a really fun experience scouting the past few years,” said Christian. “There was a time where our numbers got to about seven people. I started recruiting when I became the patrol leader and now we have about 30 kids in the troop.”

Agawam has also been getting more Eagle Scouts named, with a couple of scouts reaching the rank in the past couple of years.

Christian is a senior at Agawam High School and has attained 31 merit badges during this time with the scouts. He enjoys white-water rafting and ziplining at scout camp and also takes Tae Kwon Do in his spare time.

Boldyga touts transportation finance legislation

I wanted to bring you up to speed on recent goings-on at the State House. The House recently approved a $12.7 billion Transportation Finance Legislation package, including $300 million for local aid. I believe that the unanimous vote reaffirms our commitment to investing in local aid and transportation.

The legislation will assist Massachusetts’ communities in paying for local transportation-related projects. This marks the eighth consecutive year that the House has either raised or level-funded Chapter 90. Historically, Chapter 90 funds have been fundamental to providing stability and prompting economic growth in Massachusetts. That growth starts at the local level, which is why the House has been a huge supporter of enabling our communities with this type of aid. The bill helps to repair our hometown roads and bridges, especially during these hard winter months when much of our infrastructure is compromised. Having the opportunity to help ease our commute, lessen damage to our vehicles and overall improve transportation infrastructure is very important. I’ve always strived to bring our tax dollars back to the district and will continue to do so.

During the nearly 12-hour session on Wednesday, Jan. 29, I was successful in securing an amendment to the Transportation Bond Bill. During the debate, I put forward an amendment that included $500,000 for the repair and improvement of North Westfield Street in Agawam. The town of Agawam is tasked with maintaining North Westfield Street, but they will be able to apply for this additional funding to repair and improve the road. My office received quite a bit of input about the condition of this road. Unfortunately, due to winter weather conditions, the road is in need of paving and repairs and, in its current state, is not a very pleasant road to travel.

I’m happy that I was able to advocate for our district with the successful passage of this amendment. There are a lot of roads in our district that are in need of repair, and this is a small step in the right direction.

The legislation will also improve and modernize the state’s infrastructure system through projects including:

- $2.97 billion for statewide roadway and bridge projects;
- $350 million in investments for Regional Transit Authority improvements;

FROM THE STATEHOUSE

NICHOLAS BOLDYGA
STATE REPRESENTATIVE

The bill also includes $50 million in grant monies for the ‘complete streets’ project, which supports investments that accommodate users including motorists, pedestrians, cyclists, and public transit. The bill is now slated to go over to the Senate, where it will need a favorable vote.

Thank you for allowing me to proudly serve as your representative. Please visit my office at Cooper’s Commons, 159 Main St., Suite M, to discuss any concerns.

The challenges that seniors face

For some senior citizens, dealing with the constantly changing modern world is confusing. Seniors may have done things in a certain way for many years. Then the town (usually because of the state) comes in and changes things (they fix what's not broke). To the senior the changes make no sense and trying to get the town or state to put things back the way they were is impossible. This is very frustrating, not only for seniors, but for middle-agers as well.

It's also tough when you were raised with one set of values and now find you are surrounded by people who don't understand your way of thinking-- even look down on you, maybe get offended by your plain speaking.

Often younger people, while trying to be helpful, tend to be condescending to seniors-- "there, there dearie, you sit down and take it easy."

Sometimes the younger crowd doesn't listen either. Of course, young people have never listened, but listening to others has become a dying art. Most people want to hear themselves talk, to expound upon their ideas-- so few listen. Many seniors just want someone to listen to their problems and take them seriously-- even if they might sound a little confused.

Things are doubly hard if you are a senior who has a hearing problem or can't see or both. You can't hear what's going on so you have a hard time understanding what's happening. No one wants to take the time to explain it to you, or if they do, the explanation is too rushed and accompanied by the rolling of the eyes.

Imagine trying to apply for government assistance over the phone when you can't hear what's being said, and they can't quite understand you or your way of thinking. Maybe all you want is someone to help you do some chores-- but maybe you don't qualify for assistance.

These days there is a trend to put seniors in senior housing. On the other hand this makes it easier for seniors to get the help they need. They are less isolated, there are more events going on and more services to take advantage of. However, many seniors don't want to leave their homes. They probably built their homes, raised their families in them, are comfortable there, and have items that they can't take into senior housing. If you're an old fellow who likes to tinker with engines or old cars-- you can't do that in senior housing. Or if you like to work on wood projects-- can't do that. Or if you have an antique gun or a tool collection-- you can't bring them. Or if you have more than one pet-- you can't bring too many with you. You often have to leave many of your comforting and prized possessions behind. Many senior housing places are nice but they lack the personality that one's own home has.

A good many of our seniors are just plain lonely. The younger family members have moved off to other places, work crazy hours, are focused on the children-- so our seniors are left on their own. We know there are a lot of agencies and services out there to help them-- but it's not easy to apply for them, many times seniors get overwhelmed by the paperwork or are turned down because they aren't poor enough.

We also know that many younger people are busy with work and family, but we suggest they keep an eye out on their elderly neighbors. Just stop in and have a coffee-- don't talk, just listen. They often have cool stories to tell-- certainly the veterans do. You would be surprised by how much good listening can do to soothe another's lonely soul.

Letter to the Editor

Emergency response to be commended

To the editor:

On Feb. 19, I had to call 911 for help with my husband, Paul. The ambulance responded very quickly. The EMT's, Bob Lafrance and Mike Defilipi, provided excellent care to him.

I want the people in town to know what excellent service our 911 team provides when we need them.

I will always be thankful to the Agawam 911 team for past help and the present. It always has been excellent.

The International Herb Association announces Herb of the Year

Each year since 1995, the International Herb Association has named an “Herb of the Year.” This year the distinction goes to the Artemisias (Artemesia spp.). To qualify for the award, an herb must shine in at least two of the three following categories: medicinal, culinary or decorative. Read on to learn how Artemisias can decorate your home, flavor your food and beverage, and maybe even cure your ills!

Artemesia ludoviciana “Silver King” and I go way back. This was one of the first plants I grew in my garden of everlasting flowers in the late 1980s. Each summer I would harvest the soft, silvery branches, dry them in my parent’s attic and twist them into wreaths. Silver King spreads by underground runners, and therefore can become a huge patch in no time. For the largest, most usable branches, divide often. Grow in full sun in well-drained, alkaline soil.

Later on in my craft show career I’d add another member of this large plant family to my garden. Sweet Annie (Artemesia annua) was also used to make the wreaths and swags that I sold. It could grow to be tremendously tall, and wide- topping of at six feet or so with great side branches for cutting. The foliage has a camphor-like scent that folks either love or hate. My goal was to pick the branches before the tiny yellow flowers opened, otherwise the pollen from this plant was unbearable. Separating dried branches often left me in a cloud of yellow. Sweet Annie self-sows readily, and in Kentucky is considered to be an invasive plant.

Another herb that belongs to this diverse group is French Tarragon (Artemisia dracunculus ‘Sativa’). Some folks love it, but the taste it imparts a bitter flavor by my account.

The seeds of this plant are sterile, therefore it must be propagated by stem cuttings or divisions. It is one of those plants that I have never been able to grow successfully. Maybe I was expecting it to behave like its cousins, robust. In my garden it always looked pitiful, with a single stem or two and droopy leaves. In researching this column I learned that it isn’t as fragile as it looks. Do provide it with decent air circulation and a spot that doesn’t get waterlogged; perhaps you will have better luck growing it that I did.

Perhaps the best known of all the Artemesias is Wormwood (Artemesia absinthium). It, along with other botanicals, is used to make absinthe, a spirit with both a high level of alcohol and controversy! Less exciting is wormwood’s use in antifungal medications. Grow the two-foot tall, gray-green leaved plant in full-sun to partial shade in near neutral soil. I did find it interesting to learn that this particular plant is not a good companion to others growing nearby - a substance in its leaves reportedly stunts their growth.

The Herb Society of America has a great fact sheet on this year’s award-winner. For more information on Artemesias, consult their publication at www.herbsociety.org.

‘Culture and Cocktails’ event explores the art of deception

The event takes place Thursday, March 6, from 5-8 p.m. at the Michele and Donald D’Amour Museum of Fine Arts.

The evening’s theme is “Intent to Deceive,” and is inspired by the groundbreaking exhibit of the same name currently on view at the D’Amour MFA. Attendees can enjoy a talk on art crime by FBI Special Agent Ian Smythe while also taking part in forensic science challenges led by museum educators. The evening will also include music and complimentary hors d’oeuvres and a cash bar by Elegant Affairs. Visitors are also able to tour related exhibits at the D’Amour Museum, including “The Real Deal: Art of Authenticity.” There is an additional $5 special exhibit fee to view the “Intent to Deceive” exhibit.

to 25 students – in the elementary schools so teachers can deliver the instruction students need. Without the new teachers, classes with 23 or 24 students will become even larger.

“There is a bona fide need. We have no choice – we need these positions. It comes down to sheer numbers,” Sapelli said. “The budget I’ve proposed will assist us in offering quality education to all students because it keeps our numbers where they belong so students can learn.”

Sapelli explained that he used $51,237 (step 6 on the salary level) as the average teacher salary to calculate the cost of adding the positions. Step 6 is the midway point of the 13-step salary schedule.

Collective bargaining agreements among the various unions that represent the district’s 600 staff are another reason for the budget increase. Salaries account for nearly 80 percent of the budget. Sapelli said the annual negotiated contractual salaries for school staff are slated to rise by 1.5 percent – what he termed as basically a cost-of-living increase – during the next budget year.

A ‘fiscally responsible’ budget

“We’ve made cuts, such as in supply accounts, to offset the increases. We’ve tried to be fiscally responsible where we can, not just ask for more. This is not a wish list – it’s what we need to continue to function in the successful manner that we have to offer a quality education,” Sapelli said.

The district is also facing costs associated with several unfunded state mandates. One of those looming on the horizon is a new standardized assessment program state education officials are planning as a replacement for the MCAS. Known as the Partnership for Assessment of Readiness for College and Careers (PARCC), it is currently being pilot-tested in Agawam schools and statewide. If implemented as proposed, PARCC will require all students to take the exam using an electronic device instead of traditional paper and pencil.

“We have to budget for this technology,” said Sapelli.

He said the district needs to plan to provide iPads or laptop computers for Agawam’s nearly 4,000 students.

“In addition, we need a technological infrastructure to support these devices that has the capacity to handle all students using the devices at the same time,” he added.

Sapelli is also requesting money to build a new Early Childhood Center (ECC) and to replace intercom systems at two elementary schools. They would be funded as capital improvement projects.

‘A long way to go’

Anthony Bonavita, who chairs the school committee budget/finance subcommittee, said although the preliminary budget appears to meet the needs of students, there is still a long way to go with hours of work and meetings.

“Our analysis never stops until final passage. We have a good start, but we are by no means finished,” he said.

One factor still unknown is the amount of state aid.

His goal is to have the school committee present a budget to the city council that benefits children. Bonavita hopes to create a “smooth” budget process by including the council in preliminary budget discussions.

“The committee will answer questions and be ready to defend our budget – if necessary – as time goes on,” he said.

Bonavita said he wants to work “cohesively” with other school committee members, city councilors and the mayor on the budget.

“While we each have certain independent duties, ultimately we all have to work together to achieve what is best for the children,” he said.

Another preliminary budget workshop is set for Tuesday, March 4, at 5 p.m. in the junior high school library. The final version of the FY ’15 school budget will be reviewed by the two subcommittees on Tuesday, April 1, at 6 p.m. The formal public hearing on the budget is Tuesday, April 29, at 6:30 p.m. Those two meetings will be in the Doering Middle School auditorium.

other facilities to support preschool programs, particularly as demand to educate preschool children identified with special education needs continues to increase.

“Our students continue to receive a quality preschool program, but we have had to use space in multiple ways – and very creatively – to accommodate the specialized instruction they require,” said Fernandes, a member of a 15-member committee reviewing the needs of a new ECC.

While she and her staff “will always do our best with current conditions and space,” Fernandes said a new facility would not only provide larger classrooms than the current ECC, but it also would create more staff space. Staff activities such as parent/teacher meetings, faculty meetings, and professional development now take place in classrooms or hallways.

“I envision common space that could be used for community workshops and events open to the community that we do not currently have the space to accommodate,” she added.

Fernandes oversees a staff of 49 that includes teachers, paraprofessionals and roving service providers (a speech/language therapist, occupational therapists, and physical therapists). Current enrollment is 159 students ages three to five – nearly 30 more than when Fernandes became director.

Temporary location outlived usefulness

According to Sapelli, the one-story building housing the ECC was designed to be a temporary location when the ECC opened 20 years ago. Plans called for relocating the ECC to the current high school. That plan had to be scrapped when the state rejected Agawam’s third high school proposal late last year. A new ECC is a “dire” need, said Sapelli. He said the town must fund 100 percent of the cost for a new ECC since the state only provides financial assistance for K-12 schools, not preschool facilities. The location for a new ECC has not been determined.

“We are looking at sites on school grounds to cut back on the expense,” Sapelli said.

He estimates construction would take about two years.

Sapelli said funding a new ECC has been “in and out” of the budget for the past several years.

“We can’t put this off any longer. The facility has outlasted its useful life,” he said.

Replacing antiquated intercom systems

The intercom systems at Robinson Park and Phelps schools have also reached the end of their useful lives. Sapelli said the 30-year-old systems are “antiquated” and parts are no longer available. Communication from the office to all classrooms in the event of an emergency also makes replacing the intercom systems a safety issue.

At Phelps, 90 percent of the classroom intercoms either do not work at all or experience static. At Robinson Park, there are sporadic failures when communicating between the office and classrooms. Some classrooms are unable to hear pages or intercom calls from the office. In other Robinson Park classrooms, the office cannot hear intercom calls from teachers.

According to Sapelli, problems at both schools are due to the age of the intercom systems, and problems will continue to worsen until the systems fail completely. A new system at Robinson Park is estimated to cost $22,531. The Phelps replacement cost is slightly more, estimated at $25,434, because the school is two stories.

Will Reichelt, a municipal attorney, was also present at the Feb. 20 meeting. He made the observation that the state Department of Public Health recommends that such facilities be kept at least 500 feet away from schools.

Board member Violet Baldwin said, “I think they [PVPC] did a great job on this” and indicated that she wants to go “the way Chicopee is going.”

There was some half-joking about the possibility of a “special marijuana district,” but talk soon focused on the difference between Industrial District A and Industrial District B. Restriction of marijuana dispensaries to Industrial A would seem to present the fewest problems.

Dachos said that Agawam’s Industrial B zones allow for mixed uses, so authorizing medical marijuana facilities there could be trickier. “If you do have special permits, though [as distinct from location as a matter of right], then you can include Industrial B” as part of the range of possible sites, she said.

There was some discussion of the fact that trafficking in marijuana remains a violation of federal law. As a consequence, bankers don’t want to provide services to the vendors springing up in the various states that already have permissive laws on the books, and marijuana has developed as an all-cash business. As a result, board members expect that facilities are going to have a lot of cash on the premises, and there will be vehicles travelling to and from that will also have a lot of cash. It seems, then, that one of the unintended consequences of the new system will be the creation of targets of opportunity for thieves. Despite such considerations, as Reichelt put it, “We can’t be more restrictive than the state.”

After all this discussion no substantive vote was taken. Tricia O’Grady-Howard moved to table the issue and allow the staff to continue work on the ordinance. David Chase seconded that motion, and the board unanimously approved.

Council to reconsider union contracts

"These contracts were negotiated with the unions in good faith and I am disappointed the council has decided not to fund them," he said.

Cohen did as he was instructed and returned to the negotiating table after the funding was voted down on Jan. 21. The unions refused to re-negotiate, leading Cohen to re-submit the contracts.

"The unions refused to come back to the table," he said. "I have no choice but to re-submit them for the council's consideration."

The major contention of the unions is that they are seeking the same incremental raises unions in the public schools sought. The raises are two percent during the current fiscal year, followed by 1.5 percent increases in FY '15 and FY '16.

Some city council members argued they cut funding from the town's salary reserve last June, making it possible for only a 1.5 percent raise during the current fiscal year. Cohen has argued that he has the funds currently to finance the two percent raises.

Attorney John Connor, who is representing four of the unions, contended the council is violating the law in a letter he wrote Cohen.

"We feel the City Council made no assertion that it lacked sufficient funding to support the modest wage increases contained in these agreements," the letter stated. "The only telling comment during the discussion preceding the vote was by Chairman Christopher Johnson who appeared upset that the city council had told the Mayor prior to commencing negotiations not to exceed 1.5 percent in the first year. These comments by Mr. Johnson firmly establish that the city council seeks to negotiate directly with the town's unions in violation with Massachusetts General Law."

Councilor Gina Letellier was absent from the last meeting, but suggested at the Feb. 3 meeting that the council seek advice from an independent labor attorney. The council was scheduled to vote again on the contracts on Feb. 18, but the meeting was cancelled. The contracts were not referred to any subcommittees during the past month.

Also on the agenda for the March 3 meeting, the council will be asked to approve deficit spending for the snow and ice removal budget. The last few storms have sent the town over the $456,000 originally budgeted for the year.

AGAWAM – Just one year ago, Agawam had finally overcome the hump in Division 3A and won the state championship on top of beating their longtime rival South Hadley in the Western Massachusetts Championship game.

This year, Agawam has not slowed down and on the heels of two more wins to close out the regular season, the Brownies have gone from a Division 3A title to the top seed in Division 3 entering the tournament this weekend.

The Brownies got a well-deserved quarterfinal bye in the six-team tournament and are scheduled to play on Saturday at 3 p.m. at Olympia Ice Center.

Their opponent is yet to be determined as of press time. They are scheduled to meet the winner of the Minnechaug-East Longmeadow quarterfinal matchup.

Kieran takes fourth at Class A Championships

WILBRAHAM - Wilbraham & Monson Academy's Kieran Summers had a successful senior season of wrestling, and he has the hardware to prove it.

Kieran finished fourth in the 145-pound weight class at the Class A Championship Meet at Loomis Chaffee Feb. 8.

"I'm happy with how I wrestled," said Kieran, who received a medal for his fourth-place finish. "I lost my first match, but then came back and won my next three matches to reach the consolation final."

Kieran enjoyed a strong season for the Titans. Along with Sasha Oliinyk, he provided great leadership and helped set the tone for WMA Wrestling.

"We had some kids really step up this year," Kieran said. "Some of them are going to do really well at New England's in years to come."

"I'm real happy with my season. I won some tough matches and it was a great team to be on."

Both teams present a major challenge for the Brownies. Though East Longmeadow as not one of the top teams in the Berry Division this year, they played Agawam tough in two outings, both ties. The teams tied 6-6 in one game and 4-4 in the second. There will be no ties in the playoffs.

Minnechaug lost to Agawam twice, but played Agawam very tough last Friday night in the regular season finale for both teams.

With a playoff spot already secured for both teams as well as a Berry Division title for the Brownies, Agawam and Minnechaug played to prepare for the tournament as well as celebrate Senior Night for Agawam.

Both teams played scoreless hockey for two periods though both teams had their fair share of great opportunities to score.

Neither team was able to score until the third period when Agawam tallied three times and came away with a 3-1 victory.

In his final start before his first playoff game, Senior goalie Chris Walles picked up 17 saves and backed up a great defensive effort from his team.

John Colwell, Seamus Curran, and Joe Shea provided the three goals for the Brownies in the third period. Dominic Falvo provided the only goal for the Falcons, coming on assists from Nathan Champagne and Anthony Piteo.

For the second time this season, Agawam scored nine goals against West Springfield as they trounced the Terriers 9-2 last Thursday night. The victory over West Springfield capture the Berry Division title for the Brownies. The victory also helped Agawam lock up the first seed in the tournament over Westfield.

In the victory, eight different Brownies scored with Curran scoring two goals. Shea, Alex Abilantiss, Zach Circosta, Eric Kierkla, Mike Pfau, Cam Rivest and Billy Wysocki also scored goals. Brian Scoville had three assists.

If the Brownies win Saturday, they would advance to the sectional finals set for 8:30 p.m. Thursday, March 6 at Olympia.

BEVERLY - Wentworth men's volleyball freshman and Feeding Hills resident Colin Ritter came through for his team in three wins.

Ritter had 52 assists and 13 digs in a 3-2 win over Endicott on Saturday, Feb. 22.

He also had 33 assists in a 3-0 win over Regis on Thursday, Feb. 20.

Brownies set to face Terriers in playoff opener

Set for rematch with West Side

AGAWAM – A rivalry renews on Friday night when Agawam makes a short trip to their first playoff game of the season.

Normally, road trips are very long in the tournament, but Agawam drew the No. 7 seed and will face No. 2 West Springfield Friday at 7 p.m.

The Brownies finished their regular season with a record of 12-8. They are coming off a down game, but have had 11 days of rest and practice to prepare for their game against the Terriers.

In their regular season finale last Monday night, the Brownies were defeated by Longmeadow 78-47 on Senior Night at Agawam.

The Brownies simply could not get going fast enough and Longmeadow had too much offense in the middle of the game. The Lancer depth was also excellent as 12 different players managed to score points during the game.

Agawam was led by Tyler Desrosiers, who was played very well by the Lancers. Desrosiers scored 17 points, and while that is considered a big game for many other players, Desrosiers normally scores in the 20s or 30s.

Talon Brown, another strong shooter, was limited to just seven points.

Longmeadow had a huge first half where they scored 40 points and limited the Brownie offense to just 21 points to take a huge advantage going into the break. The Brownies were able to score more during the second half, but the Lancers were also consistent on offense and kept pace as they picked up the 30-point margin of victory.

Agawam was very lucky as their schedule had very few snow postponements. While many teams scrambled to fit games in up until last Thursday night, the Brownies completed their regular season and began preparing for the tournament.

The Brownies lost their one meeting of the season against the Terriers, 73-65. The Brownies have shown an ability to compete with West Springfield, however. In the matchup, the Brownies did hold a major advantage at one point.

Agawam took a 27-12 lead early in the game before having their offense shut down in the second quarter. West Springfield then found their shooting touch and was able to move forward in the second half, taking the lead during the third quarter.

Agawam will need a big game from Desrosiers, who just recently committed to Division 2 Post University in Waterbury, Conn. Desrosiers has surpassed 1,500 career points and hopes to lead Agawam to a division title.

If the Brownies are able to beat West Springfield, they would play next week at American International College at a date and time to be determined. Follow the Turley Sports Facebook Page for tournament dates, times, and sites.

AGAWAM – Agawam advanced grapplers into the All-State Meet scheduled for this weekend at the Tsongas Center in Lowell.

Wrestlers who place in the top six at that meet will go on compete in the New England Championships the following weekend.

Last year, Agawam's Connor Liebel was the lone grappler who qualified to compete at New Englands.

This year, his brother Brennen will seek to accomplish the same feat. Brennen Liebel has allowed accomplished many things this season, including winning several individual tournaments en route a big victory at 113 pounds at Western Mass. at Central High School two weeks ago.

At the state meet, Liebel came up a little short this year, losing in the consolation finals and placed fourth. According to the bracket released for the all-state meet, Liebel is scheduled to Matt Kelley from Foxboro in his opening match. Kelley is the second-place finisher from Division 3.

Liebel has now won two Western Mass. championships. He also captured 100 wins during the regular season in a match at home against Ludlow.

Also heading into the All-State meet is fellow Western Mass. champion Anthony

Brownies draw top seed in Division 3

Will play first game Saturday

By Gregory A. Scibelli
Turley Publications
Sports Correspondent

WEST SPRINGFIELD – The Agawam ice hockey team received the number one seed in the Western Massachusetts Division 1 Tournament as they had the best record in Western Mass. among Division 3 teams.

Seeds for the upcoming Division 3 and 3A tournaments were announced last Saturday morning at the Dante Club in West Springfield.

The Division 3 tournament will be just a six-team field while 3A will feature seven teams this year.

The addition of Agawam to Division 3 and the ability for Ludlow to reach the tournament in their last game of the season has added a round to the tournament after many years of just three or four teams reaching the tournament.

Agawam received the top seed with a 13-3-4 record for the regular season. They were the winners of the Berry Division, which is the league all six tournament teams play in.

Westfield received the number two seed. Both Westfield and Agawam will receive byes into the semifinals.

Longmeadow was seeded third, followed by East Longmeadow, Minnechaug and Ludlow.

Ludlow was scheduled to Longmeadow and Minnechaug and East Longmeadow were scheduled to face off in quarterfinal games on Tuesday.

Westfield will face the Ludlow-Longmeadow winner on Saturday at 1 p.m. at Olympia Ice Center in West Springfield. That will be followed by Agawam playing the East Longmeadow-Minnechaug winner at 3:30 p.m.

The semifinal winners will face off on Thursday, March 6 at 8:30 p.m. in the finals of the tournament.

In Division 3A, Greenfield received the top seed. Wahconah was seeded second, followed by Chicopee Comp, South Hadley, Chicopee, Belchertown, and Easthampton.

South Hadley received a berth in the tournament due to their very strong schedule and a 4-1-1 record against Division 3A teams. The Tigers remained in Division 3A, but their recent success led to them being moved to the Berry League, which consists of all Division 3 teams.

South Hadley hosted Chicopee Wednesday night, Belchertown is scheduled to play against Comp Thursday at 8 p.m. in another quarterfinal.

The semifinals are scheduled for Monday night at dates and times to be determined and the finals are March 6 at 5:30 p.m.

All games are being played at Olympia Ice Center. Tournament director Mike Shea says no games can be played at the Mass-Mutual Center until the MAC Basketball League has completed its tournament. The state semifinals can take place at the Mass-Mutual Center.

Some coaches at the meeting called for Shea to work to utilize other sites for tournament games. They argued teams that use Olympia as home ice hold an advantage.

Shea said he would look into options, but responded saying reserving ice is very difficult and there are few options available in Western Massachusetts while Eastern Mass. teams have several options.

Fitzpatrick Arena in Holyoke is also used in Western Mass., with Chicopee, Chicopee Comp, and South Hadley using the nearby arena as home ice.
